Declaration of Independence

Petition to King George from northern Rangatira (1831), asking for his protection

James Busby (1833), British Resident, sent to ensure protection and better control British subjects

Signatories (some 52) continued to be collected until 1839

Constituted and declared NZ to be an Independent State under the designation: United Tribes of New Zealand

Articulated authority of iwi as sovereign people of NZ

An invitation for all iwi to join the Confederation of United Tribes
Treaty of Waitangi – An Overview

- The Treaty was enacted in 1840 between many Māori Chiefs & the Queen (her agents)
- 3 articles, each envisaged to operate simultaneously
- Official versions – Māori & English
- Māori only signed the Māori text
- Crown representatives signed the English text

Deconstruction of the Treaty of Waitangi

- How many articles are in each version?
- What does each version of the Treaty actually say – content and intent?
- Understanding and interpretation of the words chosen?
Treaty of Waitangi - Preamble

English version – British intentions were to:

- Protect Māori interests from the encroaching British settlement;
- Provide for British settlement; and
- Establish a government to maintain peace and order.

Māori version – the Queen's main promises to Māori were to:

- Provide a government while securing tribal rangatiratanga and Māori land ownership for as long as they wished to retain it.
Treaty of Waitangi

Article 1

The Chiefs of the Confederation, and all these chiefs who have not joined in that Confederation give up to the Queen of England for ever all the Governorship (Kawanatanga) of their lands.

Kawanatanga – Article 1 provides for the Government to govern, though not in isolation from other provisions of the Treaty of Waitangi. The right to govern is qualified by an obligation to protect Māori interests. This aspect of the agreement is further established within the other articles of the Treaty.
Treaty of Waitangi (2)

Article 2

The Queen of England agrees and consents (to Give) to the Chiefs, hapus, and all the people of New Zealand, the full chieftainship (rangatiratanga) of their lands, their villages and all their possessions (taonga: everything that is held precious) but the Chiefs give to the Queen the purchasing of those pieces of land which the owner is willing to sell, subject to the arranging of payment which will be agreed to by them and the purchaser who will be appointed by the Queen for the purpose of buying for her.

Tino Rangatiratanga – Article 2 provides for iwi to exercise authority in respect of their own affairs. To some extent, tino rangatiratanga denoted the prerogatives of iwi/hapu in controlling their own affairs including their physical, social cultural resources, within a tribal development context. A characteristic of tino rangatiratanga is iwi autonomy.
Treaty of Waitangi (3)

Article 3

This is the arrangement for the consent to the governorship of the Queen. The Queen will protect all the Māori people of New Zealand, and give them all the same rights as those of the people of England.

Oritetanga – Article 3 contains a provision which guarantees equality between Māori individuals and other New Zealanders. As long as socio-economic disparities remain, the provision is not fulfilled.
Key Treaty Milestones

1852 – NZ Constitution Act
1863 – Suppression of the Rebellion Act
1860s – Land Wars (eg: Taranaki)
1860s – Kingitanga Movement
Treaty Principals

- Partnership
  - The sharing of power and decision making

- Protection
  - The exercise of chieftainship and autonomy

- Participation
  - Equity of access and participation – equity of outcome?
Summary

- Māori had their own functioning society and structures prior to arrival of British settlers.
- Māori are not an homogenous cohort (whānau, hapū & iwi).
- Declaration of Independence (28 Oct. 1835)
The Treaty of Waitangi/Te Tiriti o Waitangi (6 Feb. 1840)

- 2 versions (Māori and English)
- Signed at Waitangi and across NZ
- Independent chiefs of hapū and iwi signed
- Preamble, 4 Articles and subsequent principles have been a contemporary tool to consider the Treaty
- the Treaty is not solely a ‘Māori ’ issue
